OLYMPIC PARK
LEGACY
COMPANY

Focusing on the extent to which the Olympic Games can act as a catalyst for transformation in the places and people it touches, this event draws on the lessons of previous urban regeneration initiatives. Organised by the City Centre at Queen Mary, in association with the Olympic Park Legacy Company, the event will explore the potential for 2012 to set a new standard in social, economic and political legacy.

Chair: Jane Wills (Deputy Director of the City Centre)

Introduction by Dr David Pinder, Director of the City Centre

Speakers:

- Bob Colenutt (University of Northampton)
- Nick Edwards (Fundamental)
- Lord Mawson (founder of the Bromley by Bow centre)
- Gregory Nichols (London Citizens)
- Samantha Sifah (Olympic Park Legacy Company)
- Students from the Department of Geography
at Queen Mary, University of London

The Legacy Lecture Series has been conceptualised on behalf of the Olympic Park Legacy Company by Gillian Evans, Centre for Research on Socio-Cultural Change, University of Manchester.
